ACROMIOCLAVICULAR SPLINT

This unique design is for the treatment AC separations. Compared with others on the market it is much easier to put on and has better function. The sling is longer to support the hand and prevent wrist drop. The AC shoulder strap is wider for more positive control, and the triangulation of the straps to the sling distributes the pressure evenly from the elbow to the wrist to greatly reduce the chance of ulceration and ensures easy application.

New ACTIVE ANKLE SUPPORT

This new design is unique. There has long been a need for an ankle support that would allow function and not just immobilize. This device gives the patient maximum support without interfering with performance. The thin neoprene may be worn under a sock in a running shoe. The 3" elastic figure eight gives support without the bother and expense of continuous taping. But, the real advantage of this support comes from the double medial and lateral spiral stays.

When it comes to lifting we go way back

CABER TOSS

WHEN MOST THINK OF THE HIGHLAND GAMES, ONE THINKS OF A MAN IN A KILT RUNNING DOWN A FOOTBALL FIELD CARRYING A “TELEPHONE POLE”. PRETTY CLOSE...

The supreme test of strength, accuracy and skill. The caber toss is thought to have originated with the Scottish military who used the maneuver to breach rivers, fortifications, and barriers. The object is to toss the caber so that it turns end over end, pointing straight away from the contestant. The greater the force of the toss, the straighter the caber will fall. Watch the judge as he runs directly behind the contestant in order to judge the accuracy of the toss. The men’s caber can weigh over 120 pounds and measure 18 feet long!

Three tries are allowed.

The WORKER’S BELT

This belt was designed to offer a substantial back support for those who only need moderate support for light lifting. One of the most common complaints of all the industrial belts is that they are hot to wear. This problem is relieved with the new breathable elastic. It is an open mesh with elastic memory. The shoulder straps are optional. The suspenders are sewn on the back but, have a velcro attachment in the front for safety and comfort. Also available in white.

The Original INDUSTRIAL BLACK BELT

In order to offer the most support possible the belt must be made of strong materials. Our belt is constructed of a heavy weight denim, seat belt grade webbing and top quality elastic. The materials not only make it strong but, very durable as well. No one else has an industrial back support like ours with interlocking non-stretch pulls. It is the strength of these pulls that makes the remarkable difference between our industrial black belt and the others on the market today. The shoulder straps are optional. The sacro pad may be replaced with a gel pack for hot & cold cryogenic therapy. Also available in white.
